Beverly Sanchez is a Senior Associate Attorney in the Inland Empire office. She strongly believes in building strong client relationships, ensuring swift resolutions and a cost-effective approach for defending claims.

Her extensive career has been focused on employment law and workers' compensation defense. Before joining Albert and Mackenzie, Beverly practiced workers' compensation defense throughout California. She has secured multiple "Take Nothing" findings, influenced AMEs and QMEs in favor of her clients, and even had a death case dismissed on a Statute of Limitation issue.

Beverly grew up in San Bernardino, California. Her interests include cooking, baking, art, and attending live sporting events. When it comes to sports, she is cheering for the LA Dodgers, LA Kings, LA Rams, Denver Broncos, Rutgers, and Notre Dame.

For Beverly, the perfect weekend includes watching her children play sports, spending quality time with her family, and cooking them a delicious meal to end the day. Fun fact: Beverly was the first female to broadcast a baseball game at Rutgers University.
